Excerpt: .for their skill in the law, and for their good qualities. The Empress of whom we are now to treat did not inherit their virtue; she was of a very amorous temperament, and was a great lover of pleasures. She willingly permitted a crowd of admirers to entertain her with their passion, and listened to them with that sort of complaisance which is a sure sign of the progress such flattering discourses make in the heart of the person to whom they are addressed; so that what at first was only an agreeable amusement, in a little time became a commerce of gallantry that exposed her very much to the censures of the public, for which the irregularity of her conduct gave but too much reason; for she proceeded from one degree of libertinism to another, till at last she had not the least shadow of modesty left; so true it is that when a woman has once broken the ice, and transgressed the rules of decency, there is nothing so bad but that she is capable of it. Of all Celsa s lovers, Macrinus had perhaps the least reason to hope for success. He was a Moor by birth, of a very obscure family, and possessed none of those good qualities that could make amends for the meanness of his extraction, and other imperfections; on the contrary, he was disagreeable in his person, for his head was bald, his nose turned up; he...
