

The Transparent Society: Will Technology Force Us to Choose Between Privacy and Freedom

By David Brin

Basic Books. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 384 pages. Dimensions: 8.2in. x 5.3in. x 1.1in. In New York and Baltimore, police cameras scan public areas twenty-four hours a day. Huge commercial databases track your finances and sell that information to anyone willing to pay. Host sites on the World Wide Web record every page you view, and smart toll roads know where you drive. Every day, new technology nibbles at our privacy. Does that make you nervous David Brin is worried, but not just about privacy. He fears that society will overreact to these technologies by restricting the flow of information, frantically enforcing a reign of secrecy. Such measures, he warns, won't really preserve our privacy. Governments, the wealthy, criminals, and the techno-elite will still find ways to watch us. But we'll have fewer ways to watch them. We'll lose the key to a free society: accountability. The Transparent Society is a call for reciprocal transparency. If police cameras watch us, shouldn't we be able to watch police stations? If credit bureaus sell our data, shouldn't we know who buys it? Rather than cling to an illusion of anonymity—a historical anomaly, given our origins in close-knit villages—we should focus on guarding...

READ ONLINE
[5.06 MB]

Reviews

The publication is not difficult to go through better to comprehend. I could comprehend everything using this created e publication. It's been designed in an exceptionally easy way in fact it is merely soon after I finished reading through this ebook by which basically transformed me, modify the way I really believe.

-- Taylor Gleason

This publication is definitely not effortless to get going on reading but very fun to learn. It really is written in simple terms rather than difficult to understand. It's been printed in an extremely simple way and it is merely right after I finished reading through this pdf by which basically changed me, alter the way in my opinion.

-- Scotty Paucek