Excerpt: . . . a line from Shakespeare is strangely accepted as proof that the World Beyond is a country from whose bourne no traveller returns. It is to be regretted that this far, far away idea is still entertained by many. It creates an imagined gulf between us and the Spiritual Universe; it minimises our chances of rightly estimating what we are; it adds bitterness to the pang of separation; it detracts from the comfort that we might draw from the Gospel of Christ; it leaves behind the greater part of the sting of death, and lastly, it obscures a glorious truth disclosed in the Word of God. To that word we turn for the answer, Where is the Spiritual World The Spiritual World is everywhere, and interpenetrates the Physical So accustomed are we to think and speak of the World of Spirit as occupying a defined...
