Jacob, of West Virginia Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Delegates: You assemble under auspicious circumstances. The ratification by the people of the amendment to the Constitution of the State, which was submitted to them by an act of the last Legislature, has had the effect of removing the political disabilities of a large class of citizens. This result, so long desired, has been followed by the happiest consequences. Citizens heretofore excluded from the ballot box have patriotically come forward to take their legitimate places in the management of public affairs. All citizens have learned to prize more highly, and to guard more tenderly, the elective franchise. The bitterness of the past has been buried out of sight, and heart-burnings have, in a large measure, given way to fraternal regard. Good order and a cheerful obedience to the laws have been marked characteristics of society during the past year. It is no idle boast to say that nowhere in the Union is there greater protection to life...
